Regarding Job Application as Brand Guardian

Dear Mr. Hiddleston,

Since I've now spent months hunting down metadata chaos across Amazon/Thalia and other retailers, rescuing your good name from digital peril…

…I would like to officially apply for the position of:

Personal Brand Guardian to the God of Mischief

Responsibilities:
• Ensure Hiddleston remains spelled with all its correct letters
• Smite metadata crimes wherever they appear
• Maintain artistic dignity across all realms (especially Midgard)

Requested Compensation:
• Early screenings (to ensure proper name placement, of course)
• Occasional set visits (for quality control purposes)
• A yearly cloak allowance
• One plate with a Eccles Cake + a cuppa Yorkshire Tea Gold per month
• A direct phone number to Amazon - purely preventative

I take brand-protection very seriously.
Especially when it concerns a certain God of Asgard.

Availability on short notice if offered a quick tour through the nine realms, purely for educational reasons of course.

_____

And to the rest of the affected heroes, the following payment terms apply:

Jeremy Renner – A friendly archery duel at dawn. I provide the targets and snacks. He provides the sass.

Scarlett Johansson – A one-on-one sparring session with practice swords. Loser buys post-battle Sushi. And feel free to bring Florence Pugh along, because the three of us would make the TVA slightly nervous.

Chris Evans – He must solemnly declare "I can do this all day" while carrying my recording gear through the forest. I'll allow one "language!" slip-up.

Samuel L. Jackson – He reads a few lines for one of my stories aloud — full Nick Fury voice, optional eyepatch, bonus points if he adds commentary.

Robert Downey Jr. – One private brainstorming session to co-design the "Metadata Correction AI." He gets to name it. I get final approval if it includes snark. Shawarma's optional.

I did all this because names matter to me. Now imagine how quickly I could get your names corrected, if I would be working on your behalf. ; )

If you'll excuse me…I'll be having a well-earned cuppa before my hunt for miscredits continues.

References available upon request.
Though I assume Heimdall already saw this coming.

Signed,

Tanja G.

the Reluctant QA-Vølva of Nine Realms Quality Assurance - Midgard Office